

Baltimore Class Trip

April 13, 2010

The Seventh grade trip should be an important and memorable day for all students. Our hope is that all seventh graders will be able to participate in this event. It is important for all students to remember to continue to be good citizens in their school environment. Students must take responsibility for what goes on around them. Students that display good citizenship characteristics are cooperative, hard - working, have a positive attitude and are attentive. This means taking class time seriously and always showing respect to classmates. Students who are good school citizens demonstrate the following character traits.

- Respecting themselves
- Respecting classmates
- Respecting school personnel
- Making responsible choices
- Participating in class.
- Taking care of the school environment
- Using appropriate language at all times
- Behaving courteously to peers and adults at all times
- Adhering to the school and district discipline code policies

Students that choose not to demonstrate good citizenship characteristics will be excluded from this year's class trip. Please review with your child the importance of being a good citizen and the expectations that the school and community have set for them to follow consistently. We, the parents or guardians, have read all of the above information and understand that any student that does not display good citizenship characteristics will be excluded from this year's class trip to Baltimore, Maryland.
